Cleansing the liver, biliary tree and gallbladder through a therapeutic flush is an important first approach to detoxification to relieve biliary stasis. With gallbladder constriction and inhibited biliary flow the body is severely restricted in the ability to remove toxins from the liver into the feces. The process of clearing biliary debris begins with softening any stones or sludge that may be present. The use of phosphoric acid may be used for 5 to 14 days before the actual gallbladder flush of which two days are needed.

Preparation for Flush

- Take ____ drops of phosphoric acid ____ times daily for ____ days
- Consume a light diet of vegetables, fruit and grains for ____ days

Day of Cleansing

- Eliminate non-essential meds and nutritional supplements the day of cleansing
- Acidify your system by drinking 2 tablespoons of fresh lemon juice mixed with one tablespoon of apple cider vinegar 3 times before 2pm
- Consume nothing between 2pm and 6pm other than pure water
- Prepare an Epsom salts/ascorbic acid mixture by mixing 4 tablespoons of Epsom salts, 1 tablespoon of ascorbic acid, 2 tablespoons electrolyte concentrate in 3 cups of purified water with fresh squeezed lemon. (If IBS, chronic diarrhea or Crohns is a problem, reduce Epsom salts to one tablespoon, electrolytes to one tablespoon and ascorbic acid to one teaspoon per 3 cups purified water)

The Flush

6:00 pm Drink $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of the Epsom salt mixture

8:00 pm Drink another $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of the Epsom salt mixture

9:45 pm Pour $\frac{1}{2}$ cup olive oil, $\frac{3}{4}$ cup fresh squeezed grapefruit, 21 drops of cilantro tincture into a blender and blend well. Drink the mixture through a straw while standing.
